

Caseville
Small Animal Clinic P.C.
Pets leave an impression on our heart.

Dr. Kevin J. Stachowiak
Dr. Carrie A. Hooper
6970 Main Street
PO Box 534
Caseville, MI 48725
(989) 856-3525
www.Casevillevet.com

Got Fleas? Got Ticks? No, not you, your pets!

As you may be aware, we regularly seek a different ingredient as the active component of our recommended flea and tick protection program. Why? Within just a few generations, fleas and ticks become immune to the active ingredients being used to thwart their survival. It has been awhile since we have had anything really new to tell you about. We do, and so, that is why this letter.

Our concern is not just about your pet's health, but that of your family as well. Fleas and ticks are vectors (they transmit disease between species) of a number of diseases (Lyme disease, Ehrlichiosis, Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever, to name just a few). So our first line of defense is to control fleas and ticks in our environment and on our pets.

Sadly, freezing temperatures do not kill Fleas or Ticks. They survive comfortably on the wildlife (deer, raccoons, squirrel) that share our yards and common areas. Whenever the temperature pops up above 45 degrees, new ones emerge and look for a new "home" (host).

We have a terrific offer for you. Come in today and purchase a 6 month supply of Vectra 3D and get a $10 voucher valid towards your NEXT MEDICAL visit! Please note, this $10 voucher will only be valid for 6 months from the time of your purchase, so please be sure to schedule your next visit soon!

If you have any questions about this offer or Vectra 3D, please call us at (989) 856-3525.

As always, it is our pleasure to tend to you and your pet's health needs.

Sincerely,

Your Friends at Caseville Small Animal Clinic

Note: This article is provided by Caseville Small Animal Clinic P.C. for informational purposes only.